MOVE OF SOLDIERS BY PRESIDENT IS BIG JOB

Lack of Extreme Measures of Diaz Alarm Governments of World; Democrats Have Big Job.

Special to Evening Herald.

Washington, March 21.—The most striking event of the administration of President William H. Taft, a mark in American history attracting world-wide attention, is the movement of a third of the standing army of the United States toward Mexico with a view to the protection of American and other foreign vested interests of the latter republic. The advanced age of the Mexican president, Porfirio Diaz, with declining powers as to the state of his health, is admittance of a momentous event, which has not been anticipated in the leaders of enlightened nations. This comes into the situation after on the crest of a revolution. It was one of several revolutions which followed the expedition of the French and the trials and of Maximilian. This, mostly the president of a republic, assumed like a monarch and with an iron hand, forced the restive Latin and the blind forces of ignorance inseparable from the character of a population of mixed races, in which the element of the aborigines says go coarse, especially in the blood of that typical conglomerate of humanity. But it is realized that Diaz is meeting the inevitable conclusion of his work and worth in the affairs of Mexico. The very fact that revolutionary movements have started in various parts of the popular and that the insurrectionary disturbances have been fanned by the Diaz government with an absence of the usual sternness of Diaz has alarmed the powers of the world who are concerned in the commercial stability of a country so abundantly endowed in the riches of nature. What with the Monroe doctrine and the imperialistic proximity of the republic to Mexico, it has been assumed that of all nations the obligation of the United States to save property and human sacrifice of life is paramount. Knowledge of the character of the Mexican people carries with it the unavoidable conviction that with the death of Diaz, or his incapacity from disease or accident, the dissolution of his regime will, unless preventive force be used, be attended to results which are catastrophic to life and property. That is the obvious explanation of the proclamations of United States army toward Mexico.

PROMINENT MEN ARE INVOLVED MAN HAS EXISTED 170,000 YEARS

Alleged Swindler Caught in Los Angeles Gives Police Valuable News of Mabray Gang.

London, March 21.—Man is 170,000 years old, according to Professor Arthur Keith, conservator of the collections of the British Museum. Professor Keith delivered a lecture before the Royal College of Surgeons, Lincoln's Inn Fields, and based his deduction on remains found in Robert Elliott's quarry at Coombes Bluffs, Dorset, just a short distance from the National Museum. According to the National Museum, he is 170,000 years old.

Keith, for whom the British authorities have been searching since March 2, has admitted his theories are not confirmed by any information which immediately would lead to the arrest and conviction of the man or his son, James, who was the upper tier of gravel was laid down in prehistoric times.

Seeing and little the level and shape of the table had altered since Roman period, and that there was no change in pressure that changes in level of climate occurred at a rate of 1000 feet per 1000 years, he allowed the man to be released.

We might safely presume," concluded the lecturer, "that the relatively long-headed men of neolithic times and similar modern types still to be found among the inhabitants of western parts of Great Britain and Ireland were directly related to populations which flew by the single individual, though few by the single individual, to be prevalent in neolithic England remains to be seen."

C. M. Howlett of the forestry service with headquarters at Silver City has been going over the woods of the land office here for the purpose of securing data in reference to the timbered lands in the Gila national forest.

The forestry department has data on these lands and Mr. Howlett will use here nearly all woods up to comparatively recent years.

He expects to get complete reports on all entries made, to be kept on file in the department office at Silver City.

EXPERT TO STUDY
VALUE OF ALFALFA

Agricultural College Will Make Extensive Experiments to Determine Nutritive Strength of Alfalfa for Range Steers.

Special to Evening Herald.

Ira Clegg, N. M., March 21.—P. W. Chapman of the Pennsylvania State College, who is an expert on nutrition, has been selected by the New Mexico Agricultural college to carry on a series of experiments to determine the digestibility and nutritive value as fed to range steers for a general data section. The experiments have been carried on for some time at the college by the experiment station staff, but will be run by a successful nutrition under the direction of the college, which will probably require several years more.

Carpenters on now busy at the college have put up the stable and running pens. Yearlings and year-old range steers will be used in this experiment, ability to be the only test and accuracy to be kept concerning the amount of feed fed each day to each steer, the individual amounts being eaten. The principal object of the experiments is to determine the proportion of digestible elements in the alfalfa with its nutritive value. The alfalfa will be analyzed soon than to this, and the nutritive products will also be analyzed to determine just what percent of the digestible food value are assimilated by the animals and what portion is excreted in waste.

At the end of a year, a packing house expert will make charge of the slaughtered and cutting up of these steers, and make a report upon the quality of meat and an accurate report of the weight based upon the previous year.

Mosine Park will have a new church for the members of the Episcopalian faith after H. W. Bechtel erected this summer. Mrs. Hartman Lewis, the local pastor, has been hard at work for the past several months on plans to raise the necessary money and now all but about $1000 remain necessary for the new structure. The new building will be built across the road from the present building. It is to be used as a schoolhouse.

The Bissell-French company has recently received the contracts for the construction of two handsome ranch homes in this valley. One will be

FRENCH ARE HONORED

Monument to Soldiers Who Fought in Revolution Will Be Unveiled April 18.

Annapolis, Md., March 21.—An event of international interest will take place at Annapolis on April 18, when, under the auspices of the National Society of the Sons of the Revolution, a monument to the memory of French soldiers and sailors who gave their lives in the struggle for American independence will be unveiled on the rear campus of St. John's College. A number of these French soldiers and sailors are buried in the vicinity of the monument, and though their graves were still unmarked.

The president of the United States and a large number of other distinguished personages are expected, and it is probable that a French fleet will be sent to the local waters, with a large civil, military and naval representation of that nation. Of course, the sons and many of the United States will be well represented, and the most prominent members of the Sons of the Revolution will attend. The corps of cadets of St. John's college will act as the special guard of honor to the occasion.

The former site of the monument was laid with appropriate ceremonies on April 16, 1898, addressed by M. Gosselin, ambassador of France in this country, and Col. Charles Trichard. At the time a French regiment was at Annapolis, having come to this country to take part in the celebration of the retirement of Admiral John Paul Jones.

The French soldiers and sailors who died here have left their names on the monuments of St. John's, the sons of those who are buried in the vicinity of the monument, and the name of the city of the Bellini. Most of the survivors took part in the siege and final capture of Anzio.
